RE: Update on : NEXT GENERATION SCIENCE STANDARDS

Dear Parents,

As you are probably aware, the Next Generation Science Standards (NGSS) have been adopted by the State of California. Most school districts progress through three stages as they adopt these new NGSS standards. The stages are awareness, transition, and implementation. In the Alexander Valley School District, we are in the transition/implementation stage as we are building parent knowledge and teacher expertise. We are in exciting times @AVS as NGSS science instruction has been enhanced the last few years incorporating successful classroom instruction with hands-on experiential instruction in our Science Lab. Even more exciting is the fact that over the next couple of years we will be designing a new science lab for our students to continue to thrive in!

In July 2015, the new K-12 Science Framework was introduced and has now been finalized and approved by the state. Curriculum and science assessments have been developed and we are excited to adopt a state approved K-6 science curriculum later this school year. This Thursday, several AVS teachers will attend a science curriculum review conference held at SCOE. This team of teachers will bring back options and ideas around the pros and cons of the new choices of state curriculum. We will then work closely with our Curriculum Committee, parents, and staff on a final NGSS curriculum selection and begin planning next steps for our students. It is important to note that NGSS shifts science instruction away from an emphasis on knowledge acquisition towards teaching students to use scientific knowledge and engineering practices to conduct investigations and solve problems. We look forward to adopting a new curriculum and implementing it in the 2019-2020 school year!

Have a great rest of the week!

Mr. Reno
